Cotton Mather The following is the substance of an article published in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, for April, 1863, written by John Ward Dean, Esq., of Boston: A century ago no poetry was more popular in New England than Wigglesworth's Day of Doom. Francis Jenks, Esq., in an article in the Christian Examiner for Nov., 1828, speaks of it as a work which was taught our fathers with their catechisms, and which many an aged person with whom we are acquainted can still repeat, though they may not have met with a copy since they were in leading strings; a work that was hawked about the country, printed on sheets like common ballads; and, in fine, a work which fairly represents the prevailing, theology of New England at the time it was written, and which Mather thought might, perhaps, find our children till the Day itself arrives. The popularity of Wigglesworth dated from the appearance of his poem, and continued for more than a century. Expressing in earnest words the theology which they believed, and picturing in lively colors the terrors of the judgment day and the awful wrath of an offended God, it commended itself to those zealous Puritans, who had little taste for lofty rhyme or literary excellence. The imaginative youth devoured its horrors with avidity, and shuddered at its fierce denunciation of sin. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic...
